Foreword

Although the 1961-62 school year is over, each class will have something significant in its own right to cherish and remember as it looks through the pages of our yearbook.

As the freshmen become juniors, the memory of Freshie Day will linger on: an exciting experience to some, a day of woe to others. They will also remember—with smiles on their faces—the bewildering predicament they found themselves in the first day of school as they tried to find the rooms assigned to them.

The juniors, now promoted to seniors, will always hold dear the day they wore their class rings for the first time and the thrilling night of their junior prom. Of course, the nightly homework assignments which seemed never to end will be remembered with a wrinkle on their brow.

The now-graduated seniors will have memories abundant as they reminisce through their yearbook. Their senior prom, which was even more splendid than they had anticipated, will by far stand out as the highlight of their last year at Commerce. The senior banquet, the senior hats, and Class Day will as well be included as they think back to all their joys at high school.

Yes, there are memories for everyone pictured in the 1962 yearbook. As you turn its pages, let each page be a KEY unlocking a fond recollection.

To us at Commerce, the word FACULTY means FRIENDS. Each of us has, at some time or other, experienced occasions when our teachers have been more than just teachers. Their main duty is that of trying to educate those of us who desire training or knowledge in a certain field. But how many of us have taken personal problems to our superiors with the hope that we would gain understanding, and in addition, have found a solution? Although we do not always show gratitude towards them, it is always there. We appreciate having such a fine faculty.

Classes . . .

The shrill ring of the bell brings to mind several things, one of which is a summons to class. In these forty-two minute periods we have endeavored to absorb all that is possible of a subject. There are some exceptions to the rule, however, as when interruptions such as assemblies and fire drills have shortened the time period. At these times we are often surprised to find a look of genuine relief upon the faces of our teachers as well as upon our own. Regardless of whether periods are long or short, however, we have learned to appreciate every valuable minute that is spent in class.

Thomas Burke's rock collection proves an interesting topic for an oral composition in his freshman English class, where oral as well as written expression is emphasized.

Right: Terry Lyons shows the correct way to dissect a frog in the Biology Lab as Judy Gero, Diane Settembro, Mary Chambers, and Dolores Piwo-warczyk look on.

The General Course

includes pupils not yet specializing in a particular field. They are prepared for employment as typical office assistants. By their senior year many will become adept in more advanced skills.

"When shall we three meet again?" say the three witches of Macbeth: Carol Kinsman, Sharon Duff, and Joanne LeBlanc.

Left: Putting their mathematical talents to use are Lorraine Senecal and Ronald Blodgett in Mr. Bennett's geometry class.

The College Preparatory

course contains a wide variety of subjects for the college-bound student. The C. P. student may also take a combination course with stenography or bookkeeping, enabling him to succeed in both college and outside employment.

Stenography,

a two-year course, not only teaches students the techniques of shorthand, but also helps them to develop skill in typing and office procedures.

Industriously transcribing their shorthand notes are Dawna McKay, Marilyn Simpson, Linda Monson, Patricia Gebo in their Stenography II class.

Senior Suzanne Parent is learning one of the first steps in the filing procedure. Seniors take Filing as part of a three-division course in Office Practice Studying a copy of the Declaration of Independence, which was part of the Freedom Train display, are stenography students Ida Vandal, Elsa Cressotti, Robert Morana, Kathy St. Marie, and Dolores Maratea in their American History class. This document and many other milestones of our country's history were on exhibit.

Kathleen Rourke is shown operating a ditto machine, while Gladys Sterner observes. Students are also taught how to prepare stencils in the two-marking-period Duplication course.

Mary Campbell points out the business services of our Federal Government to Donald Mannix, Mary Jean Duffy, Mike Tillander, and Carolyn Berger during Mr. Finnegan's Civics class.

Debating upon a major economic issue are Francis Vivenzio, Marna Berthiaume, Richard Fox, Diane Colby, and Robert Page, who are students in Mr. McKay's Economics class.

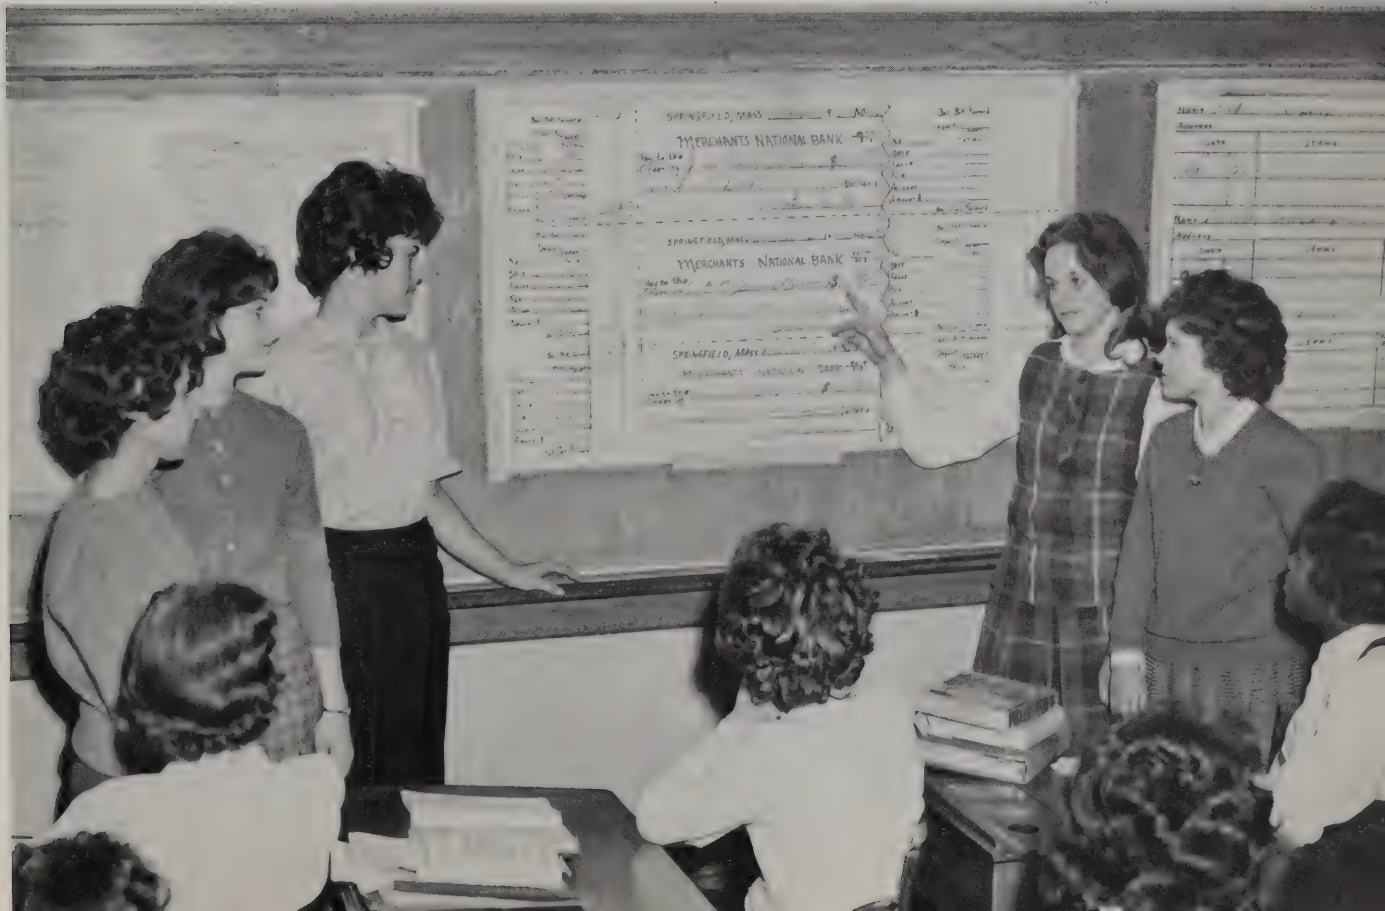

Bookkeeping

opens a complete world of top-rate positions in the business field. His three years of training gives a student the background he needs either to go to work or to continue with his education at a business college.

The correct form in which a check should be made out is pointed out by Susan Jorda while Linda Lopardo, Barbara Fortune, Martha Peach, and Janet Bergeron look on in Mr. Alleva's Bookkeeping I class.

Clerical

students have a wide choice of job opportunities because of the many skills they can offer an employer: bookkeeping, filing, duplicating, typing, machine calculation.

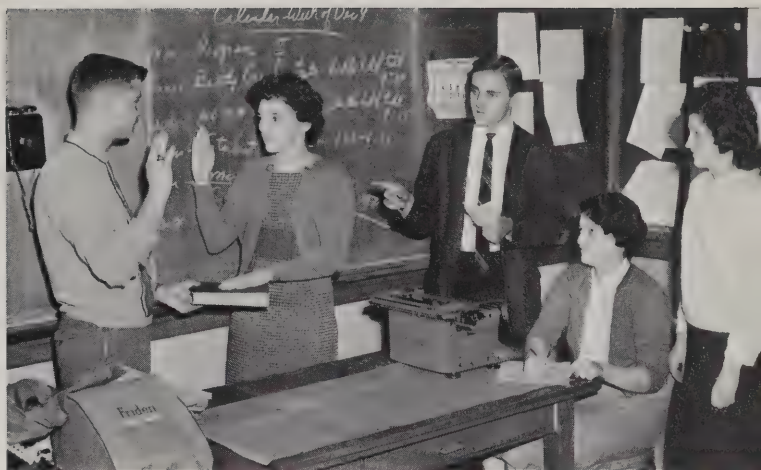

Band is among the electives available to clerical students. A glance into the band room reveals Frank Calabrese, Eli Green, Francis O'Leary, and Peter Wosiak during a practice session.

It's not all work and no play in this curriculum—many students elect Personality and Etiquette. Enjoying themselves at the class New Year's party, designed to give them social experience, are Robert Philp, Beatrice Stovall, James Donnelly, Judy Johnson, Barbara Schroeder, Richard Haglund, Patricia Martel, and Martha Monroe.

In Clerical Bookkeeping class among the processes is examining posted papers for both the right and wrong ways to do the work. Diane Colby, Judy Fantoni, Lois Goodrich, Bill Quinn, and Nancy Scibelli are at Mr. McWha's bulletin board.

Clerical students learn the fundamentals of business law in this class. Here, Richard Haglund, Barbara Schroeder, Francis O'Leary, Nancy Bonville, and Cynthia Starziak participate in a reenactment of the familiar scene of taking an oath in a courtroom.

Another of the "fun" classes offered to clerical students is Choir. Mastering a new number under the direction of Mr. Walter Nickerson are Sally Montague, Carmeline Guardione, Ruth Rosen, Marylou Searles, serves occupations in which 30 per cent of the population is employed. On-the-job-training highlights job rotation, a unique feature of this course. During training the student learns many phases of merchandising. Doris Kurtyka is shown performing several duties a D.E. student must learn.

Distributive Education

Doris works in the electronic computing department, assisting in the preparation of daily sales summaries.

She helps in arranging stock when new merchandise arrives as well as in preparing displays to show new goods to the public.

Doris helps in the inventory.

She gains experience in selling on the job.

In another phase of her training, Doris runs a key-punch preparing cards for the computer.

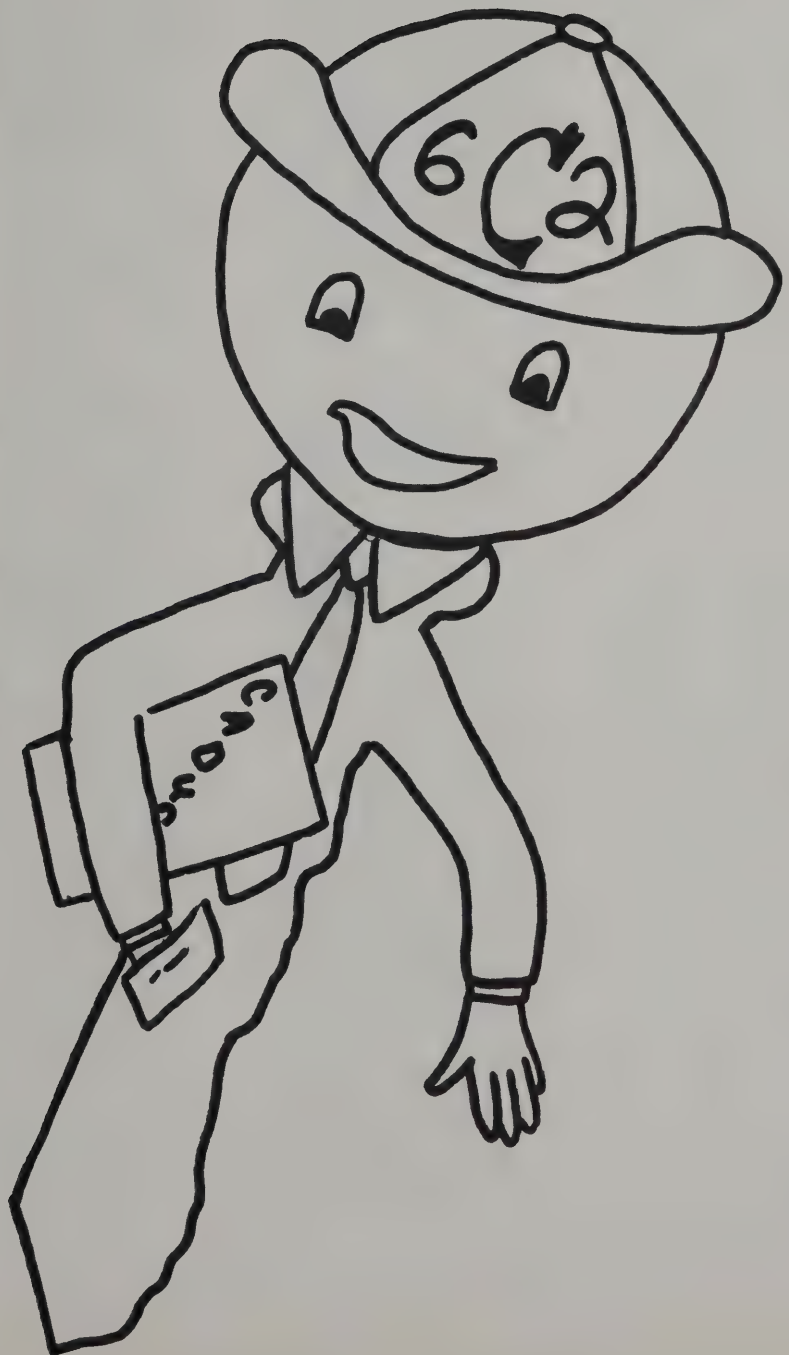

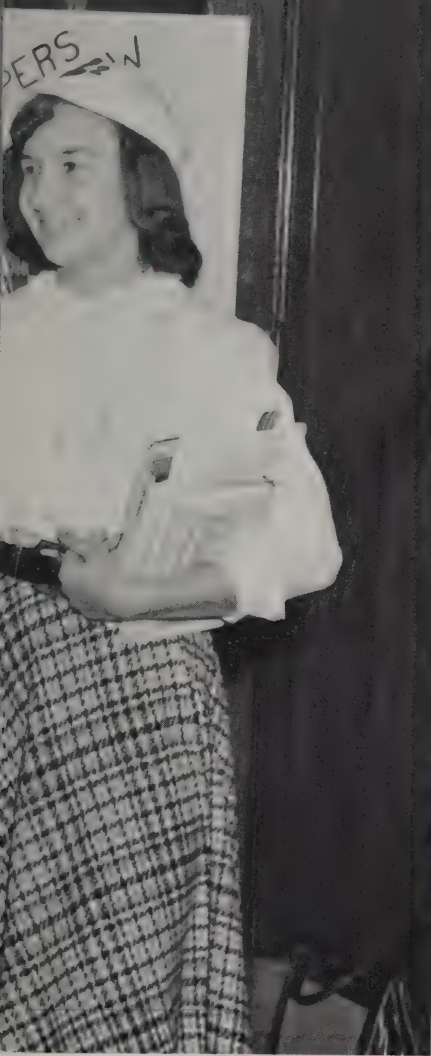

A major design of Distributive Education is to lead students to career objectives that will develop a more efficient distribution of goods and services for us, the consumers.

She develops poise by the broadening experience of personal contact with the customers.

The senior year is filled with anxiety and anticipation. Almost from the first day of school of this last year, things begin to happen: Senior hats are passed out and worn proudly; yearbook-photo appointments are received from the studio; ballots are distributed out for prettiest girl, class wit, and many other superlatives. Of course, such familiar things as cheering at rallies and games and listening to suggestions at guidance meetings are still a part of the everyday life. Many of these will be sadly missed by our seniors, but such memories will be brought back a hundred-fold as they glance through their yearbooks in years to come. Yes, the senior year and all of its events are exciting; it is the year most remembered by high school students.

Harbor Lights 1961

Students Judy Panagotopolos, Barbara Schroeder, and Theresa Sheffer introduce their escorts to the guests of the evening, Mrs. & Mr. Raymond Montagna, assistant principal, and Mrs. & Mr. Philip A. Sweeney, principal.

Enchanting is the word that best describes the 1961 Junior Prom, the first in 34 years. Although it was awaited with eagerness, no one imagined how wonderful it really would be. These students are really enjoying themselves

Relaxing at the dinghy, one of the feature attractions of the evening, are Jane Messier and Nancy Martel, and their escorts.

"Harbor Lights" was an overwhelming success, as students danced under the nautical spell cast by the reflected blue, green, and yellow lights revolving from the lighthouse.

A pretty sight is the queen and her court: Lynn Lohmyer, Denise Brunet, Queen Aroxy Meregian, Gerry Grigg, and Pat Gebo.

Awed by the dancing agility of Donna Seymour and her escort, faculty and seniors gathered around to get a few tips on how to do the Twist.

Receiving presents from Santa Claus, better known as Larry Dunn, for their fine work in making the Christmas dance a success, are Art Savage, chairman; Mr. William Wilder and Mrs. Helene Griffin, advisers; and Mary Joslyn and Judith Panagotopoulos, co-chairmen.

Snowflake Cotillion

A grand march to Santa's sleigh to receive colorful balloons was led by Senior Class President Richard Pietrucci.

"Here comes Santa Claus. Here comes 'Santa Claus'" played the band as Larry Dunn, portraying Jolly Old Saint Nick, was escorted to the festivities by Mary Joslyn, Denise Brunet, and Beverly Gamelli.

Judy Panagotopoulos and her escort seemed to be enjoying the decorations as they took advantage of a piece of obscure mistletoe hung above the entrance to the dance.

The beginning . . .

In September, 1959, a group of forelorn and worried boys and girls entered their chosen school, The High School of Commerce. A whole new world of work and enjoyment presented itself to pupils from various junior high schools throughout Springfield. Our group of 474 youths found an air of friendship from the upperclassmen and faculty, who were eager to help us find our way. The first fear of entering upon high school life was finally conquered.

The following weeks revealed many new discoveries and experiences. The most startling news we encountered was a notice, in the form of a threat reading: "Freshie Day—Dress Appropriately." Hundreds of us entered our favorite school wearing hilarious costumes. After our diligently avoiding seniors stationed throughout the halls, the "Big Clanger" rang announcing our "Death Warrant" in an assembly organized by the blood-thirsty upperclassmen. The first victims of these vultures were Paul Kapansky and Kevin Cavanaugh, who were forced to revolutionize the art of cheerleading. Acrobatic stunts were the next exhibition of power displayed by the seniors, who compelled many of us to give our fellow freshmen a piggy-back ride on stage. One pleasing effect of this feat, at least for Ernest LaFaille, was the sudden knowledge of Austin Kimball's hidden talents for serving as transportation. The seniors then showed supreme delight from a well-plotted Wedding March, the main attraction of their ego-building assembly. Diane Richards and John Pestana proved to be picturesque wearing large shirts and ties, one shoe and one sneaker, and one nylon and one sock.

Since then we were officially included as members of the Commerce society, we embarked upon campaigning for our Freshmen elections. Slogans such as Olive Washburn's, "All of my opponents are okay, but for the best vote O. J." infiltrated the halls thanks to the efforts of untiring campaign managers such as Barbara Warren and Isabelle Wenk. After they presented their platforms to us in an assembly, we chose Richard Pietrucci as president (which got to be a habit in the next two years); Diane Richards, vice-president; and Alyce Boussy, secretary.

Hysterical

Although we enjoyed being actively engaged in sports and many other school functions, we responded to the first Capers Call with even more enthusiasm. The theme, Various Styles of American Music, led Gloria Girouard to present her version of "Accordiana" and Ellen Stebbins to sing the well-known "Buttons and Bows." Previously, our class didn't realize that we had a Perry Como among our more talented classmen. Yes, Bobby Ryan really has some hidden vocal chords. These talented freshmen added to the great success of "Capers 1959."

Because of the tremendous talents of our class, we also showed great representation in the Music Festival, another main attraction of our Freshman year. Our orchestra played such popular tunes as "At Eventide It Shall Be Light," by Gaul; "Raisins and Almonds," a Jewish folk song; and "Ballet Music," from Rosamunde by Schubert. Of course, there had to be a few musicians who insisted on playing old-fashioned music. Yes, Pat Riley, Lucy Childs, and Hamilton Wray favored such classical melodies as "Rock Around the Clock," and the "Twist." There was also quite a contrast between "Ave Maria" sung by Sandy Maynard and Cheryl Crowe of the Choralettes and "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," sung by Barbara Allen, Joan Khoury, and Edwina Hervieux of the Glee Club.

Unaware of any more important occurrences before the end of the Freshman year, we were suddenly confronted with the task of electing officers for our Junior year. A few members of our class showed protest against what they considered a Communist election, since only one person was running for each office. Nevertheless, compelled to vote, we cast our ballots in a democratic way, voting for the only people running, who were Richard Pietrucci, president; Karen Geagan, secretary, and Sandy Smart, vice-president.

Upon returning to Commerce in September to begin our Junior year, many of us, being more familiar with the school and our fellow students, participated in such activities as Junior Achievement, Pro Merito, Hi-Y, Kumtux, and many after-school sports, eagerly awaiting our second Capers Call. A host of new talent was discovered among the members of our junior class. Among these, the Lollipop Kids, better known as Sandy Maynard, Carolyn Monnette, Barbara Allen, and Evelyn Mielnikowski sang the popular song of the same name. Everyone had their hats or pocket-books ready to catch "Pennies From Heaven" as Nancy Alexander sang that song so realistically. In a skit concerning spring, a scarecrow portrayed by Ellen

History

Stebbins was the victim of that old crow Barbara Warren, who so eagerly played her part that she nearly took off in flight.

Sorry, Wrong Number, a play put on by the Drama Club, should have won an Academy Award for terrorizing the faculty. Margaret Lawton, the victim of an unscrupulous murder plot, appropriately concluded the play with a shrieking scream about five octaves higher than her normal voice. This sent Marcia Kimball, Henry Jutras, and Susan Taft, members of the cast, and most of the audience fleeing from the building.

Determined to boost our team to victory with spirit, a large crowd turned out for the first basketball game of the season. When our boys assembled on the court for practice, their skill was compared by everyone to that of the famous Boston Celtics. Soon after the game began, Russell Orr, Bobby Ryan and Hamilton Wray rushed across the court to make a swooping basket—for the other team, a play well-known in the Globe Trotter ranks. Well!—it was something like that. Despite little mistakes like that, our team led us to the City Championship and a berth in the Western Mass. tournament.

The announcement of plans for the first Junior Prom in 34 years was the most earth-shattering news we were to hear in our first two years at Commerce. "Harbor Lights" was held on April 29, 1961, with Ronnie Drumm and his orchestra. The beautiful decorations proved to be a hazard when streamers, forming a curtain-like entrance at the bottom of the stairs, obstructed the view of two former strangers who crashed together unexpectedly. Seeing stars in a romantic atmosphere, Lynn Lohmeyer and Doug Dayton became the BEST of friends.

Rather accustomed to having elections in an undemocratic fashion, we elected Richard Pietrucci, president; Art Savage, vice president; and Barbara Goff, secretary. Looking back on the great job they did as our senior officers, we might come to the conclusion that undemocratic elections are the best.

Engrossed with expectations of better things during our senior year, our junior year came to a close without warning.

On September 9, 1961, our class began its final year in high school. On the first day, the sparkling new white senior hats were seen all through the halls. Nearly everyone looked impressive; two exceptions, however, were Larry Dunn, whose hat covered as much area as a Hummingbird would, and Ellen Stebbins, whose hat looked like a Chinese coolie's hiding most of her face. Obviously, somebody goofed!

After establishing our prestige over underclassmen, we officially initiated the freshmen in a new kind of Freshie Day held in the assembly hall. Since there were a larger number of boys in the Freshmen Class this year, we decided to test their abilities against some of our stronger senior girls, such as Diane Richards. Unjustifiably, we blindfolded only the boy and handed each a roll of newspaper as a weapon to use in the battle of the sexes. Although Diane had the advantage of seeing her opponent, she fled from the reach of the all-powerful freshman swatter who had given her a few good blows during the main bout. We thrived on the embarrassment of these young freshmen, and as Mr. Sweeney said later, "The assembly turned out very nicely—for the seniors!!"

A little bit of "class" was added to the seniors when we chose "Snowflake Cotillion" as the name for our Christmas dance. Surprised by a visit from Santa Claus, better known as Larry Dunn, the dance immediately took on the spirit of Christmas. While generously handing out colorful balloons, something within Santa's suit kept slipping down — down — down!!! What was left was Larry Dunn.

"Rah, Rah for Commerce" was a familiar cheer heard from the grandstands during the most fantastic and successful basketball season of our three years at Commerce. We witnessed many thrilling rallies, but the most unforgettable one began in an ordinary way with the drill team dramatically marching down the center aisle and assembling on the stage to lead us in our school song. Suddenly, our attention was averted to Mr. Grant, who conspicuously held a white sneaker high and asked, "Who claims this sneaker?" Immediately Andrea Bryant's face turned a bright scarlet to match her uniform. When asked why she didn't stop to replace her shoe, Andrea's only comment was, "The show must go on."

Memories of incidents such as these and the more important events such as Class Day, the Banquet and our thrilling Senior Prom will always linger on in the heart of every senior of the triumphant class of 1962.

Juniors . . .

The junior year is most often thought of as the hardest of high school. To compensate, however, for what may seem endless amounts of homework is the knowledge of no longer being the Commerce "babies." Another element of satisfaction is the prestige of getting class rings and being visited by Business Consultants just as the seniors are. Campaign turmoil for the election of senior officers is the next important event of the junior year. More memorable than everything else, however, is the gala junior prom. From then on, all thoughts are turned towards that all-important senior year.

The Junior Class officers are Judy Collings, Vice-President; Richard Blanchard, President; and Sandra Shonak, Secretary. Shown seated are Mr. Finnegan, Miss Clancy, and Mr. Holley, the class advisers.

The freshman year is one in which each student embarks upon a whole new world of academic goals and social activities. During the first few weeks, each freshman remains closely attached to those he has known since junior high school. Freshie Day, however, conquers all barriers. As the "persecuted victims" of the seniors, the frosh are united to a common cause—that of avoiding any and all seniors. At the end of the day, however, each freshie knows that he is now a welcomed member of the High School of Commerce. Of course, there are other exciting "firsts" during the freshman year such as the freshman elections, Commerce Capers, semester exams, and finally the election of junior officers.

Freshmen . . .

"I'll walk the line," says Joyce Gentile, as she is followed by David Plant toward the stage for a mock wedding at the Freshie Day Assembly.

Marching along together are Charles Connors, Christine Sweeney, and Cheryl Nye during the torture of Freshie Day.

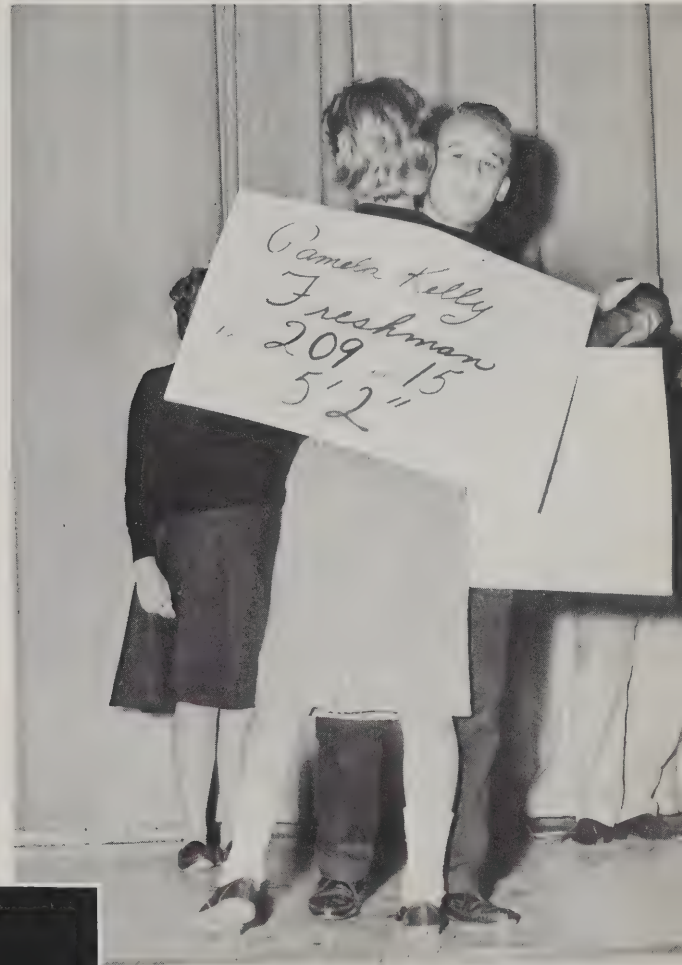

That First Month

of freshman year can be a harrowing experience: first day confusion, aptitude tests . . . and Freshie Day.

Seniors Richard Pietrucci and Marilyn Bourgeois are amused by the balloon contest between Betty Gaffney and Robert Armitage at their Freshie Day Assembly.

"Dance with me," says Richard Rosso to his nervous partner, Pamela Kelly, at the Freshie Day Assembly.

"Problems, problems, problems all day long," says Carolina Fazio during the Freshman Aptitude Tests.

Activities . . .

Activities, an all-important aspect of school-life, range from school services such as patrol and office aids to entertainment provided by the Commerce Capers and the Music Festival. Spare-time activities such as Audio-Visual Aids, school publications, Trading Post, and Drama Club also help to develop specialized talents. The workers of the Red Raiders Saving Bank, Patrols, Junior Red Cross, and T. B. Typists provide necessary aid to our school and community. Both Kumtux and Pro Merito are organizations which instill in their members a goal for high academic achievement, school service, and fellowship. This year, a new organization, the Math Club, was added to our many extra-curricular activities. Also new this year was the participation of four Commerce students on an inter-school television quiz program.

Student Patrols

serve us well. Imagine the confusion in the High School of Commerce without the Patrols! Controlling lost and found articles, supervising the locker rooms, guarding school corridors, and keeping out unauthorized wanderers, the Student patrols are always on the job.

One of the major patrol posts is the Information Desk where Marianne Sergides is found seventh period every day.

Enjoying the food at the annual patrol picnic are Barbara Lohan, Arthur Savage, Linda DiSanti, Michael Sambrook, Rita Lucerino, and Karen Murdoch who are babysitting for Mr. Smith's son.

Entertainment at Its Best is brought out by members of such extra-curricular activities as the Drama Club under the direction of Mr. Grant and Mr. Michaels; and the Glee Club, Chorus, band, and Orchestra directed by Mr. Nickerson.

Participants representing Commerce on the "High Schools Match Wits" television program were Barbara Goff, Mary Joslyn, Marilyn Bourgeois, and Lucille Phaneuf.

Introducing the 1962 edition of the Commerce Capers are members of the kick line: Una Freeman, Linda Fitzgerald, Sue Jordan, Barbara Fortune, and Lois Gentile.

From the International Act of the show is Maria Sifakis, who danced up a storm with her castanets and Spanish dance.

Also from the International Act is Cookie "Yamamoto" Grigg, who gave an Oriental flavor to the show with her Japanese song.

One of the many numbers from the Broadway Act of Capers is Gloria Girouard, who had the audience laughing at her pantomime of "Honey Bun" from South Pacific.

Commerce

Capers

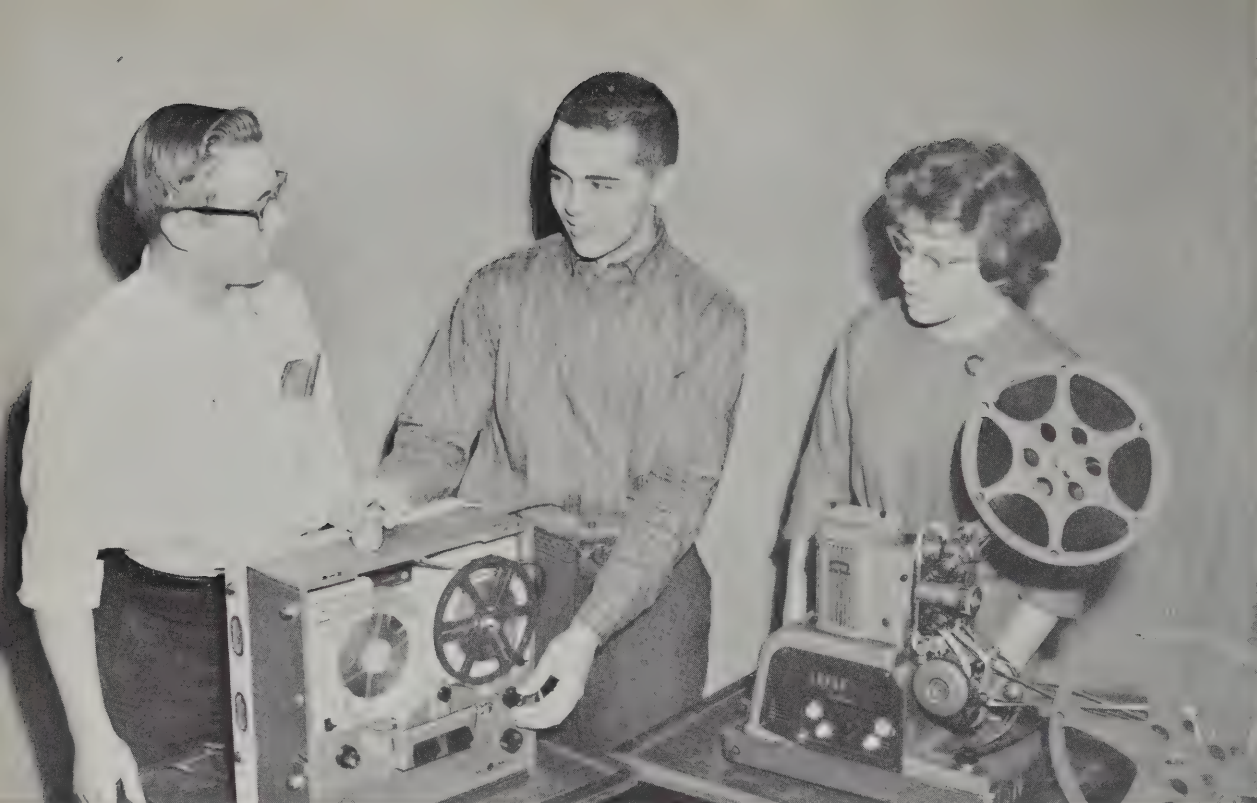

The recent edition of Commerce Capers presented talent of all types in comical and song-and-dance routines ranging from international music of popular Broadway shows.

Marching out from the International Act are Joan and Jan Dorman, who entertained the audience with their skillful baton twirling.

The highlight of the evening came during the Broadway Act, when the members of the faculty overwhelmed the audience with their rendition of "There is Nothing Like A Dame," also from South Pacific. Harmonizing are, Standing: Mr. Harold Smith and Mr. Wayland Holley; Front Row: Mr. Melvin Grant and Mr. John Bennett.

The Audio-Visual Aids technicians: Richard Moore, Mark Curto, and Patricia Langevin, under the supervision of Mr. Harold Jones, assist in running films for various classes throughout the school year.

Diverse Activities

enable students to lend their hearts and skills to the service of their school and their community.

The High School of Commerce contributes to the Junior Red Cross each year. Pictured here, making layettes, are Barbara Dinnie, Phyllis Pieraccini, Marion Derderdian, and Michele Hebert.

Many Commerce students volunteer their services as typists to the Tuberculosis Association each year. Displaying TB seals are the typing captains: Karen Kennedy, Lynn Rogers, Linda Fitzgerald, Carolyn Ugolini, and Barbara Goff.

Our WSPR Representatives for Commerce are Carole Kinsman, Beulah Thomas, Alexandria Szmydt, and Joanne LaBounty.

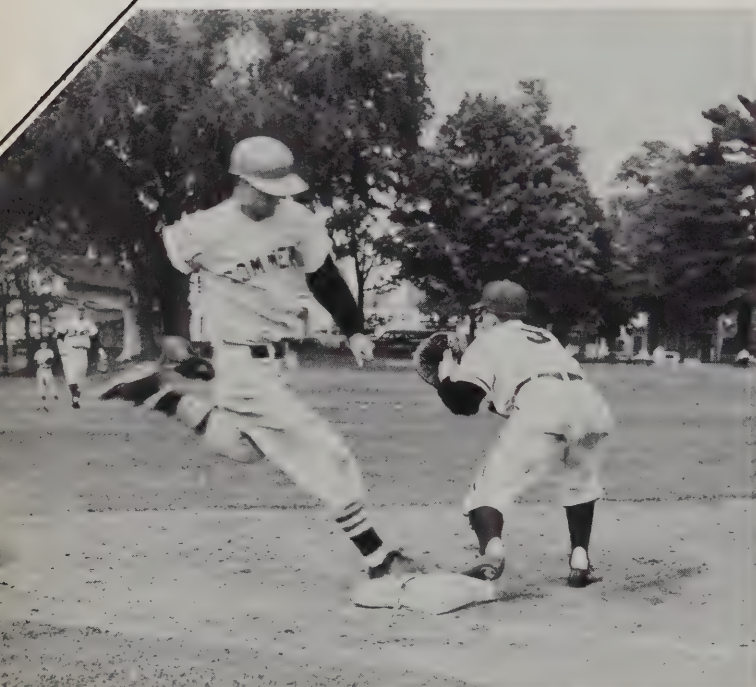

The school year of 1961-62 will be remembered not only as a year in which our boys won many games and excelled in sportsmanship and teamwork; it will also be remembered as the year in which Commerce spirit and support reached its zenith. Everyone turned out to cheer on our basketball team to victory after victory. In return, our team gave us a thrilling game each time, sensing that each Commerce student was behind them. The fact that our team scored 100 points in one basketball game is evidence of that. The result: A city championship. Our boys won their first baseball and football victories over Classical in three years, while our soccer team emerged with three boys receiving All-City honorable mention. The year may also be remembered as a year in which a large number of girls took part in after-school sports activities such as volleyball, field hockey, bowling, basketball, and softball.

The Raider golf hopefuls, Richard Moore, Art Granfield, and John Herlihy, pose with their coach, Mr. Troy. The boys had a fair season and have new and better prospects for next season.

It was another successful season for the newly organized Wrestling Team under the expert supervision of Coach George Meacham. The tumblers had an even season of 4 wins and 4 losses and made an attempt at the All-City titles. John Ashe, in the 138-pound class, was the only Raider to gain a city championship. Runners up were Joseph Prior, last year's champ, and Gary Fessia, a newcomer. Front Row: Charles Anderson, Roland Bretta, Brad Slater, and Mario DeNardo; Second Row: Donald DeWolf, Captain Allan Grigg, Robert Allis, John Ashe, and Bernard Booth; Back Row: Manager Robert Green, Thomas Burke, Jeff Lind, Michael Zeo, Gary Fessia, Joseph Prior, and Coach Meacham.

Sports Variety

characterizes the year-round athletic program, aiming for the broadest possible student participation. Emphasis is given to developing talents that may afford life-long recreational satisfaction.

The Raider Bowling Squad finished fourth this season and showed two of the city's top candlepin bowlers, veteran Brian Pannier and freshman Roger Bouchard. They were tough to put down all season, winning 43 points while losing 37. Seated at the scorer's bench is Brian Pannier (101 average); Second Row: John O'Brien (88), Roger Bouchard (101), Frank Etkin (91), and Nick DePalo (93); Standing: Douglas McDonald (80), Coach Raymond Ellison, and Henry Vogel (97).

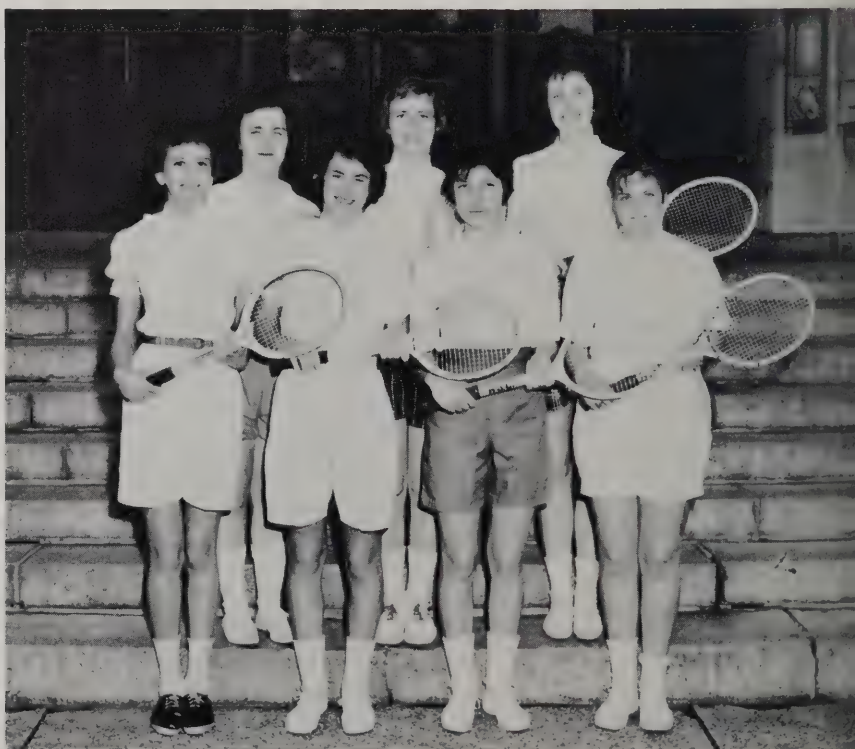

Girls Athletics

afford the opportunity of not only building bodies properly but also of learning new skills and good sportsmanship.

Basketball: Get that ball! Some of our girls try to emulate our boys' varsity basketball team. Who will get that ball? Among those trying are: Terri Duguay, Druscilla Usher, Maryanne Zieliński, and Patricia Geagan.

Tennis: This group always appreciates a beautiful day so they can get on the courts and start swinging. Waiting for transportation to Forest Park are: Gale McKay, Janet Sanderson, Terri Duguay, Gabriele Bay, Patricia Geagan, Theresa McMahon, and Patricia Walsh.

Pyramid. Egypt in our own gym? You never know what you'll find under the hands of Mrs. O'Dell. Participating are: Bottom Row: Pat and Marina Romanos; Second Row: Joan Frazier, Joyce Houser, Nancy Salter, Dorothea Hammond, Karen Griffin, Eneda Gelinas, Carolyn Fraska; Top Row: Eileen Watson, Laurie Mastroianni, Joan Monroe.

Senior Cheerleaders. The senior cheerleaders who pose as if performing part of a cheer are: Captain Ellen Stebbins, Eleanor Lawler, Diana Richards, Joyce Jones, Karen Geagan, Lynn Rogers.

Acknowledgements

We are grateful to many people beyond the Editorial Staff for giving their time and talents. Without their assistance, Caduceus 1962 would have been a more difficult task and a poorer publication.

To Mrs. Cabana — who supervised our typing sessions during her unassigned time.

To all the homeroom and classroom teachers — who "overlooked" our demanding interruptions.

To Miss McCleary, Mr. Jones, Pat Gebo, Carolyn Ugolini, Marion Nickelson, and Donna Sanderson — who catered to our every beck and call for group and action photos.

To Miss Henderson and her senior assistant,

Hamilton Wray — who arranged appointments and carefully followed the senior portraits through their production.

To Steve Raichelson, our student photographer, and Jill Surprenant, his "secretary," — who supplied our junior candid.

To Diane Colby — whose artistic talents brighten the Senior Ballot.

To Sam Meregian and Larry Dunn — who aided us on the sports section.

To Mr. Ed Carlson of the Loring Studios — who rescued us in several emergency photo situations.

And, above all, to Mr. Jack Brown, our printer's representative — for invaluable technical advice throughout the entire book.

Spotlight Reporters

regularly give Commerce its best advertising. Their weekly report on school events keeps the public informed and interested.

Senior Barbara Goff and Junior Elsa Cressotti write a weekly news column throughout the school year. Featured on the "Spotlight on Youth" page of the Sunday Republican is their informative, chatty account of Commerce doings.
